The Free Methodist Church in Jordan

Present Ministries

Church-planting efforts in Amman, the capital of Jordan, have been divinely changed by the unprecedented influx of refugees. Five congregations are heroically attempting to serve more than 19,000 refugee households. As a country, Jordan is roughly the size of the state of Maine, with 10.4 million people. Approximately 1.4 million Syrian refugees, 2 million Palestinian refugees and more than 1 million Iraqi refugees are now in Jordan. Estimates are that half of these refugees are children, "a generation without education." A partnership with ICCM established Connected Communities to help refugee children who cannot attend public schools. New areas are opening, and a network of "majority" house churches is developing.

Pray for:

- team members working with refugees to be strengthened and renewed physically, emotionally and spiritually
- people of Muslim background, having experienced the compassion of Christians, to be open to the saving power of the gospel
- the ICCM Connected Communities, helping refugee children receive education
