

together | everywhere

Together with all those everywhere who call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ
1 Corinthians 1:2

Prisoners or Free

by Pastor Dale, Middle East/North Africa

We heard God's voice telling us to preach to prison convicts. We visit almost 156 Egyptian prisoners regularly, talking to them about Christ and salvation. Many have come to know the Lord through this ministry.

We also reach out to the prisoners' families to share the good news with them and to encourage them. Home groups have been formed out of these meetings.

Pastor "B" writes: "During my prison visit, I met a prisoner convicted to a life sentence. He had no hope and was considering suicide, mainly because he claimed to be innocent. Having heard his story, I shared with him the message of salvation, stressing the fact that sin is like prison and many people who are 'free' physically are prisoners of their sins. I told him he has hope in everlasting life by accepting Jesus and that in heaven there is no pain, there are no tears. Heaven is a place of joy and praise. He asked me to pray with him, and he accepted the Lord Jesus as his Savior. Now he shares his faith with other prisoners."

During one of our prison visits, one prisoner overheard us talking to Christian prisoners. He asked: "Did God tell you to only care for the Christian prisoners?" I answered "no," but the prison security would not allow us to serve "majority" prisoners. He talked to the prison chief saying, "We need these pastors to speak to us." Permission was granted, so we started to speak about the love of Jesus to all – Christian and "majority" prisoners.

"Majority" refers to a group that make up at least 50% of the population.

together | everywhere

Together with all those everywhere who call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ
1 Corinthians 1:2

Prisoners or Free

by Pastor Dale, Middle East/North Africa

We heard God's voice telling us to preach to prison convicts. We visit almost 156 Egyptian prisoners regularly, talking to them about Christ and salvation. Many have come to know the Lord through this ministry.

We also reach out to the prisoners' families to share the good news with them and to encourage them. Home groups have been formed out of these meetings.

Pastor "B" writes: "During my prison visit, I met a prisoner convicted to a life sentence. He had no hope and was considering suicide, mainly because he claimed to be innocent. Having heard his story, I shared with him the message of salvation, stressing the fact that sin is like prison and many people who are 'free' physically are prisoners of their sins. I told him he has hope in everlasting life by accepting Jesus and that in heaven there is no pain, there are no tears. Heaven is a place of joy and praise. He asked me to pray with him, and he accepted the Lord Jesus as his Savior. Now he shares his faith with other prisoners."

During one of our prison visits, one prisoner overheard us talking to Christian prisoners. He asked: "Did God tell you to only care for the Christian prisoners?" I answered "no," but the prison security would not allow us to serve "majority" prisoners. He talked to the prison chief saying, "We need these pastors to speak to us." Permission was granted, so we started to speak about the love of Jesus to all – Christian and "majority" prisoners.

"Majority" refers to a group that make up at least 50% of the population.