REDEFINING

By Erin Kingsley

It is a familiar scenario – a single mother, a few young children and an abusive partner. Against all odds, they escape the situation and, by God's grace, discover a safe home for women and children on the outskirts of Budapest. They are safe but confused, hurt and lost. They come seeking love, comfort and acceptance.

This is the story of most women and children in the Salvation Army safe home in Budapest. Desperate, they are unknowingly in need of Jesus. Sadly, many are part of an ethnic group that, still to this day, faces deep-seated racism in Hungary. They have little money, and their access to transportation is limited – if any. They will be rejected in most places. So how do we, as believers with granted admittance to this home, bring these young women and children the hope of Christ? We love them like He does as we share the gospel message!

Every month, we spend a Saturday teaching the mothers and children about the redemptive love of Christ. We teach the children how to pray and sing songs about the love of God. We read and discuss a Bible story. We do a craft with the children, giving them one of God's promises to focus on for the month. The simple crafts profess things like “God keeps His promises,” “God redeems us” or “Jesus loves everyone.”

This is not “church” as we typically think of it. The children are often in their pajamas; we don't follow a strict format, and we don't take part in communion. However, Jesus has told us clearly it is not these things that truly make a church. In Matthew 18:20, Jesus teaches, “Where two or three gather in my name, there am I with them.” Here in Budapest, we are redefining “church” as anywhere we are gathered in Jesus' name.

Jesus' redeeming grace has been seen in the stories of many women and children as they tell us with hopeful, bright eyes how they secured a new job or were approved for an apartment – or when the children proudly recite a prayer or Bible verse. God is moving and at work among those who are underserved and seen as outcasts in Budapest. Please join us in praying for Him to continually speak into the hearts of these precious women and children as they regain their lives after trauma.

“Peace be with you!” Christ greeted His frightened and confused disciples. He stood in their midst and transformed their pain into joy, weakness into strength, and uncertainty into courage. Though outside the walls, Rome still ruled with power, Christ brought peace to hearts – peace that overcame fear and revealed what peace, love, ministry and sacrifice truly are. And today, just as then, Jesus reminds us the most significant victory has already been won, and everyone who believes in Him has His peace, even amid war, behind prison walls, under occupation and in the trenches.

In our church, we sing this worship song:
You give peace in the midst of war; You light the way in the darkness; You pour Your rain upon the deserts – and I am not alone. You are with us.

Peace Amid, Peace Near By

Amid war, we continue to work, serve, smile, hug, love and dream. Last summer, we had a dream to create a special place for children and youth of fallen soldiers. For more than six months, we prayed and sought opportunities. What a joy! With God’s help, our dream has become a reality.

Two floors up – in the same building used by our volunteer center, WAY – is “Porch” (Ukrainian for “nearby”), named quite symbolically because it’s important to have someone dependable by your side in times of deep pain and suffering. Our vision is for this to be a safe space where the children of soldiers currently defending Ukraine or children whose fathers have died in the war can experience healing, love and hope.

Through faith, education and therapy, we seek to help rebuild the children’s lives and develop their potential. Various programs for different age levels help make it enjoyable and meaningful. But our greatest desire is to demonstrate Christ’s love for them. On April 5, this youth space was officially opened. We began regular activities: sports programs, English-language courses, art therapy, group therapy for teens, a teen movie club, workshops, teen girls’ fellowship, and the Wise Carpenter project for boys.

As we move forward, we believe God will guide us and bless this place with His presence. We hope it will become a place of refuge, healing and growth. Please pray that God will use us amid the crisis of war as we walk nearby to rebuild lives and help young people find living hope.

I Want to Grow in God and Learn More!

By Cindi Angelo

How awesome to preach the gospel and see multitudes responding to the call for salvation all at once! But what particularly thrills me is being able to reach one life, lead the person to know and love Jesus, baptize them, and help them become a fervent disciple of Christ. We cannot track the spiritual growth of crowds, but we can for individuals. It is a great privilege!

Tiago Almeida, a 24-year-old Portuguese man, was unaware of God's plan for salvation. He is the production manager of an industrial-waste treatment plant and was awakened by the message of the gospel when he observed the life of his co-worker Catarina Conceição, who was raised in our church. During her work breaks, Catarina spoke to him about the love of God.

After hearing Catarina, Tiago became curious, and even though he was still skeptical, he used Instagram to search for more information about our church. He asked for details about our meetings, and I responded with attention and prayer for his soul. God works in so many interesting ways! The following Sunday, Tiago arrived at church, and I was at the door, welcoming him with a hug and a smile.

Tiago was attentive during the worship service, although with some suspicion. It was the first time he had entered an evangelical church. In Portugal, 96% of the population declares itself Roman Catholic. Attending another type of church can be seen as betraying the tradition of one's ancestors, and Tiago did not yet know his soul thirsted for God. His spirit cried out to know the truth, and Catarina was the channel God used to reach his heart.

Tiago was well received; he listened to the sermon attentively, he received a Bible, and the young people surrounded him to invite him to the youth group the following week.

Tiago went to the youth meetings and continued coming to services. He finally gave his life to Christ, began discipleship and was baptized. He began to grow in his faith like a plant being watered and cared for. Recently, Tiago said, "Pastor, I want to grow in God and learn more, to be a disciple of Jesus, because in the future, I want to be a church planter to win my people for Him." Praise the Lord!
