L'Opital Claire Heureuse-Marchand Dessalines

Keep praying! Within the last month, an extremely violent gang entered the town of Dessalines where the Claire Heureuse Hospital is. Homes were looted and many people fled to the nearby towns of St Marc and Gonaives where it is safe. The hospital doors remain open and a few staff remained to be available for emergency care. And the 11 out-patient clinics spread throughout the Artibonite Valley which offer pre-natal care, vaccinations and some limited emergency care remain open. Historically, the town of Dessalines was the first capitol of the independent nation of Haiti, and there is a strong feeling throughout the country regarding the importance of the town. To this end, the Haitian police recently engaged the gang and are in a fight to remove these despots from Dessalines. Overall, it is a very difficult situation. But as the hospital chaplain, Hyronce Cadet said in a recent conversation, "God is good and God is in control."

HHA continues to send funds to support the church and the hospital which are being used to pay bills and salaries. Although most of the staff have been displaced and are not at the hospital, they are all owed months of back pay. And, just as they have been faithful to the hospital, we want to be faithful to them during this time of extreme stress and need.

"To evangelize, to teach and to heal"

Susanna Wesley Clinic-Vialet

For many who have been supporting the Susanna Wesley Clinic, the news is good. The clinic has been open daily and the clinic build is nearing completion. Pastor Nortrius continues to send timely receipts and photos of the construction progress. It has been an amazing experience to partner with the Vialet Church and Pastor Nortrius. Money? HHA currently has 75-80% of the funds raised and we expect to need another $25,000-$35,000 to fully complete the building. We are almost there. Thank you

I am often asked why I still support work in Haiti, and the answer is very simple: God told me to do so. I am an old Blackaby fan and believe that I am supposed to be doing the last thing that God told me to do until He tells me to do something different. While HHA has watched many great things happen in the last year, there is no doubt that things continue to deteriorate in Haiti, according to the world, who only looks through worldly eyes. I don't know nor do I understand what God is doing, I only know that He told me and our board members to build a clinic in Vialet. So, we are building a clinic in Vialet. I ask that you join us in this project. In His Name and for His glory!

Blessings,
